Department of Homeland Security Office of Inspector General Strategic Plan 2022 – 2026

MESSAGE FROM THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

I am pleased to provide the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Office of Inspector General (OIG) Strategic Plan for fiscal years 2022 through 2026. This plan describes the focus and direction of the OIG's operations during the next five years. It establishes our organizational goals and outlines the strategies we will employ to reach those goals, as well as the indicators we will use to measure progress. This strategic plan is the result of a collaborative and inclusive process with internal and external stakeholders' input as well as value.

During this period of transition, we reexamined what we do and how we do it. The plan is the first step in a larger organizational transformation effort and sets the foundation for us to build a culture of excellence. I believe that making necessary changes will best position us to anticipate and overcome challenges and, through our commitment to excellence and innovation, we will be able to address new emerging issues.

We are dedicated to our mission of providing independent oversight and promoting excellence, integrity, and accountability within DHS while continuing to build trust with our stakeholders and the American people. To achieve our mission, we conduct independent audits, inspections, and investigations to ensure integrity in DHS's operations and programs and identify opportunities for improvement as we aim to ensure the safety of the homeland. Now, more than ever, that work is critical. The information we provide to DHS and Congress can result in changes to legislation, regulations, policies, and practices. These changes are designed to continually improve DHS operations and programs, so they best serve America's taxpayers.

The strategic plan is the first step in a broader framework for organizational change and shifts in our focus to improve the OIG's ability to assess, anticipate, and respond to new challenges. Four strategic goals drive our focus:

- Deliver Results that Promote the Efficiency, Effectiveness, and Integrity of DHS Programs and Operations
- Cultivate a, Highly Skilled, Flexible, and Engaged Workforce
- Strengthen Relationships and Build Trust with External Stakeholders
- Build and Sustain Enterprise-wide Governance and Management to Support the Workforce and Optimize Efficiency and Effectiveness

In developing the plan, we considered DHS's mission, strategic plan, and management challenges; major program developments and initiatives; and the OIG's statutory responsibilities. While our Strategic Plan provides a roadmap to accomplish our mission during the next five years, we will periodically consult with DHS, Congress, and other stakeholders and use the feedback we receive to revise our approach as necessary. This will allow us to consistently improve our products and services. We will also continue to assess the impact of our work to maximize the effectiveness of our efforts and resources.

In closing, thank you to the OIG staff for its diligent efforts on behalf of America's taxpayers, DHS, Congress, and all of our stakeholders for their support. I look forward to continuing to work with you to meet our goals and fulfill our mission.

Sincerely,

JOSEPH V

UNDERSTANDING THE LANDSCAPE

Strategic Plan Environmental Factors

The DHS OIG must carry out its oversight mission in a demanding and uncertain environment. We have identified the following external and internal environmental factors, which informed the development of the OIG Strategic Plan 2022-2026.

External Factors

Complex, evolving DHS mission. DHS is one of the largest federal government departments and it has one of the most diverse mission portfolios, with significant linkages across the different programs and operations, ranging from responding to natural disasters to protecting the boarder. Moreover, threats to homeland security rapidly evolve and priorities can shift swiftly and significantly. The successful performance of the DHS OIG’s oversight mission requires a broad range of expertise, flexibility, and a robust capacity to anticipate and plan for future needs.

Information technology trends. Rapid developments in information technology present both risks and opportunities. Risks stem from developments such as the evolving threat of cyberattacks. The emergence of big data and the discipline of data analytics present opportunities for more efficient and effective oversight. The COVID-19 pandemic has forced the adoption of remote work practices and revealed opportunities for increased flexibility and efficiency.

Stakeholder input. During the strategic planning process, Congressional staff and DHS leadership identified two areas for continued improvement: (1) timeliness and quality of OIG products and services, and (2) communication and transparency of OIG processes. Both are critical to maintaining a reputation for independence, which underpins the ability of the OIG to carry out its oversight mission effectively.

Internal Factors

As part of the strategic planning process, the DHS OIG leadership team and representatives from program offices evaluated the organization’s internal environment by soliciting feedback from staff and other internal stakeholders. This was accomplished through the use of focus groups, interviews and an employee survey. We identified the organization’s strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and potential risks. In addition, our analysis identified opportunities to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of our workforce by strengthening internal resources and key processes.

Mission operations and business systems. Like many federal government agencies, the DHS OIG uses a patchwork of legacy IT systems and manual processes that hinder efficiency and the ability to monitor and manage performance. To address this challenge, the DHS OIG engaged an independent, third-party assessment of processes and systems to provide guidance on developing an integrated approach.

Workforce. DHS OIG’s dedicated and knowledgeable employees represent the organization’s greatest asset and are critical in achieving our goals. To support our staff, we must improve training to develop their strengths, address skills gaps, and meet mission-critical objectives. We must promote an environment that supports employee engagement and strengthen communication throughout the organization. Finally, we must develop robust performance management tools that provide meaningful guidance and feedback to employees.

Directive Framework. To enhance efficiency, we must provide directives and procedures in key areas that define clear roles and responsibilities and manage internal and external organizational risks.

Risks

In developing our strategic plan, we assessed both key risks to mission performance and potential opportunities to advance our mission. We accomplished this through the thoughtful examination of internal assessments and stakeholder feedback. Drawing from this insight, we identified and prioritized areas for improvement. We then mapped those areas to components of the strategic plan and developed strategic goals and objectives to address the related risks and to facilitate organizational change. To measure our progress in implementing our strategic goals and objectives, we developed performance indicators and supporting strategies in line with statutory guidance and leading practices in the OIG community.

Another key factor is continuing access to the resources needed to sustain organizational change efforts. This will depend in part on the ability of the DHS OIG to cultivate positive relations with external stakeholders through timely, objective, high-quality products and services, as well as regular communication, transparency, and responsiveness.

Finally, by integrating enterprise risk management practices into our strategic planning process, we have developed a holistic understanding of the risks that may impede mission performance.

Development of the Plan

This plan is the result of an extensive process that included engagement with both internal and external stakeholders. The strategic planning process and the plan adhere to the Government Performance and Results Modernization Act and follow Government Accountability Office (GAO) and Council of the Inspectors General and Integrity and Efficiency (CIGIE) best practices, as well as those employed by peer OIGs.

To gather external input, we interviewed more than fifty senior-level officials, including representatives of key external stakeholder groups:

- Congress
- DHS programs
- Office of Management and Budget
- CIGIE
- GAO

Various stakeholders contributed to the strategic planning process and the plan itself:

- The Inspector General, Principal Deputy Inspector General and Chief of Staff (COS) shared their views on the vision and values.
- Agency and program leaders (COS, Deputy Inspectors General (DIGs), Assistant Inspectors General (AIGs), and program office managers and supervisors) participated in strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats (SWOT)/Visioning sessions.
- The Employee Advisory Council participated in a group interview and a SWOT/Visioning session.
- Staff volunteers participated in four cross-cutting focus groups, with discussions concentrating on SWOTs and suggestions for improvement. Focus groups consisted of headquarters and field office staff, supervisors and non-supervisors, and representatives of mission and mission-support offices.
- All staff had the opportunity to share their perspectives through a survey designed to validate internal organizational factors identified through the SWOT sessions; 259 individuals (36%) completed the survey.

We used the information gathered through these engagements to identify themes, which in turn informed the goals, objectives, and illustrative performance indicators and strategies included in the plan. Our strategic planning process was documented to facilitate repeatability in future strategic planning and other related planning initiatives.

WHO WE ARE AND WHAT WE DO

Congress enacted the Inspector General Act of 1978 to ensure integrity and efficiency in government. DHS and its OIG were established in 2002 by the Homeland Security Act. The OIG provides independent oversight of the DHS to ensure excellence, integrity, and accountability in the pursuit of safeguarding the homeland and American people. The OIG is headquartered in Washington, DC and encompasses 11 regional field offices across the country.

Audits provide essential transparency over DHS-level programs and operations. Efforts are concentrated in promoting effective governance and accountability across the DHS to ensure that taxpayer funds are being used effectively and efficiently.

Inspections and Evaluations provide systematic and independent assessments of the design, implementation, and results of DHS operations, programs, and policies to determine their efficiency, effectiveness, impact, and sustainability. Special reviews typically concern high-profile or particularly sensitive matters.

Investigations address alleged violations of law that impact the DHS's programs, operations, facilities, and personnel. Priority is given to investigations of suspected violations of criminal and civil statutes. Investigators work closely with prosecutors and other law enforcement organizations.

MISSION

To provide independent oversight and promote excellence, integrity, and accountability within DHS.

DEVELOPING STRATEGIC GOALS

Drawing on the findings of our strategic planning process, we developed a set of strategic goals, related objectives, and illustrative performance indicators and strategies.

Strategic Goals

Our strategic plan sets out general, outcome-oriented strategic goals.

Strategic Objectives

For each strategic goal, multiple objectives were developed reflecting specific areas for improvement identified through the strategic planning process. These objectives are formulated to be specific enough to enable the measurement of progress in these areas.

Strategies and Performance Indicators

For each of the strategic goals, we developed performance indicators that are outcome-oriented and quantitative wherever feasible. These are intended to illustrate at a high level our approach to measuring progress in areas critical to mission performance. Strategies are provided to illustrate how objectives will be operationalized. These performance indicators and strategies will be further refined and supplemented during the process of developing an enterprise-wide implementation plan and corresponding component-level plans.

As part of the annual performance process, we will analyze data obtained from the performance indicators and other feedback to recalibrate strategies to achieve our objectives. As the capacities of the organization mature over a multiyear period, we will adjust strategies and performance indicators.

»» THE WAY AHEAD

This strategic plan sets the foundation for the transformational change we want to achieve during the next several years. In addition to putting our mission priorities into focus, it sets forth the values and behaviors underpinning the culture needed to achieve our mission and vision, and highlights priority management challenges. Developing the plan was a significant endeavor that drew upon input from OIG staff and external stakeholders. The comprehensive strategic planning process was designed to create a path forward and concentrate our efforts on being best positioned for the future.

We are committed to working with our staff and external stakeholders to implement the plan; we will have an ongoing dialogue and address needs and concerns as we move forward. We will ensure that every OIG employee understands the contents of and need for the plan, and how their individual work supports our mission.

With input from stakeholders, we will develop an enterprise-wide implementation strategy to support the goals and objectives included in the plan. The implementation strategy will assign responsibilities and delineate metrics, measures, and timelines. We will track progress and adjust our strategies, as needed, to overcome obstacles and respond to the changing environment, including emerging threats and opportunities.

As we embark on this exciting new chapter of continual improvement and innovation, we remain dedicated to the integrity of our mission, adhering to statutory requirements, and providing the necessary independent oversight to safeguard the American people and our homeland.
