Dear Mr. Irvin:

Re: Maher Arar

I am an attorney representing Mr. Maher Arar, a dual citizen of Canada and Syria, who I understand is the subject of a review being undertaken by your office in order to evaluate how US Immigration Officials arrived at their decision to send him to Syria. I also understand that you will examine general policies used by US Immigration Officials to determine where to send non-immigrants who are removed. We are very anxious that this review be fulsome and I am instructed to inform you that Mr. Arar would be pleased to make himself available to you for an interview should that be of assistance to your evaluation. Given the circumstances of Mr. Arar's deportation from the United States, it is obvious that any such interview would have to take place either on the telephone or in Canada. In any event, I want you to know that he is available, should you find this useful.

I might also add that this offer is being made with the concurrence and support of the Centre for Constitutional Rights who are acting for Mr. Arar in respect of a lawsuit that has been filed in the United States.

We would be most interested if you could tell us what the time line of your review is and when you expect it to be complete. Further, it would be of great interest to us to know whether or not the report prepared will be public.

I trust this information is of assistance.

Yours very truly,

Marlys Edwardh

FROM:

SUBJECT:

Removal of Immigration Detainee to Syria

In response to a Congressional inquiry, the Office of Inspector General is initiating a review of an incident involving Mr. Maher Arar, a citizen of Syria and Canada. Mr. Arar was detained by Immigration and Naturalization Service authorities in New York in September 2002, and was later removed to Syria. Mr. Arar has since returned to Canada and has alleged that he was tortured while in Syrian custody.

Our objective is to evaluate how U.S. immigration officials arrived at their decision to send Mr. Arar to Syria. We will also examine general policies used by U.S. immigration officials to determine where to send non-immigrants who are removed.

We plan to begin fieldwork this month in the Washington, D.C. area and field locations to be determined.

If you have any questions concerning this inspection, please call me, or ask your staff to contact Robert Ashbaugh, Assistant Inspector General for Inspections, Evaluations, and Special Reviews, at (202) 254-4100, or at (202) 254-4100 We look forward to working with you and your staff.

Review of the Removal of Immigration Detainee Maher Arar to Syria by the Immigration and Naturalization Service

Purpose

This review will evaluate the decision by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) to remove Maher Arar, a citizen of Syria and Canada, to Syria. Mr. Arar, initially detained by INS authorities in New York in September 2002, has since returned to Canada and has alleged that he was tortured while in Syrian custody.

We will also examine the INS policies in effect at the time that governed to which countries nonimmigrant aliens are removed.

Scope and Methodology

The review, requested by Rep. John Conyers, Jr. (D-MI), Ranking Member of the House Committee on the Judiciary, will focus on the INS's role in sending Mr. Arar to Syria as opposed to Canada. Rep. Conyers posed five questions to DHS/OIG and the Attorney General, of which two are in the current purview of DHS/OIG. Therefore, we will principally determine . In addition, the INS policies for determining country of destination for aliens subject to removal will have been effective during Mr. Arar's initial detention and removal – September and October, 2002.

We will conduct interviews and review data and documents in Washington, D.C., and will visit the port of entry at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York, where the INS initially detained Mr. Arar. For review background, we will develop a timeline from Mr. Arar's initial detention to his eventual return to Canada. We will use

To develop our findings, we will interview,

We will review the following documents:

REVIEW PROPOSAL

Background

Maher Arar was born in Syria in 1970 and immigrated to Canada in 1987. According to news reports, he earned bachelor's and master's degrees in computer engineering and worked in Ottawa as a telecommunications engineer. His wife Monia Mazigh has a doctoral degree in mathematics; Mr. Arar and his wife have a young son and daughter.

Mr. Arar was detained by the INS at JFK International Airport on September 26, 2002, while he was returning alone to Montreal from a family vacation in Tunisia, on the Mediterranean. A citizen of Canada and Syria, he was carrying a Canadian passport. According to news reports, U.S. officials alleged that Mr. Arar had connections to al-Qaeda and he was consequently detained and questioned.

According to media reports, Deputy Attorney General Larry Thompson issued an order on October 7, 2002, for Mr. Arar's deportation on national security grounds (an "extraordinary rendition"). At some point between September 26, and October 7, 2002, the INS adjudicated Mr. Arar to be an "expedited removal" case. The media also reported that on October 8, 2002, Mr. Arar was flown from New York to Washington, D.C. where a "special removal unit" boarded the plane. This unit accompanied Mr. Arar to Amman, Jordan, arriving on the morning of October 9, 2002. According to Mr. Arar's statement, he was turned over to Jordanian officials who blindfolded him and put him in a van and beat him while taking him to a building where he was fingerprinted and questioned. He was then put in another car and driven to what Mr. Arar thought was the Syrian border. He switched cars and was taken to what he was told was the Palestine branch of Syrian military intelligence.

On October 22, 2002, the Canadian Foreign Affairs Department stated that Mr. Arar was being held in a Syrian prison. Although we obtained conflicting information, this is where Mr. Arar remained for over ten months until his release. Alternately, there are suggestions that Mr. Arar was detained and interrogated at a Central Intelligence Agency facility in Jordan for 12 days before being transported to Syria.

The Syrian Government informed Canada on April 30, 2002, that it would charge Mr. Arar with membership in a banned Muslim organization, the Muslim Brotherhood of Syria. Mr. Arar was eventually released by Syria on October 5, 2003, almost a year after he was removed to Syria from the United States, and arrived in Montreal on October 6, 2003.

Dear Mr. Inspector General and Mr. Attorney General,

I am writing to request that the Inspector General's and Attorney General's office investigate your departments' rendition of Maher Arar to Syria in October of 2002. Recent reports indicate that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Central Intelligence Agency and the Attorney General arranged for Mr. Arar to be delivered into the hands of Syrian intelligence officials who are renowned for their use of torture against prisoners.

Mr. Arar is a citizen of both Syria and Canada, and has lived in the latter for the past 15 years. On September 26, 2002, the INS detained Mr. Arar while he was changing planes at John F. Kennedy airport. He was subsequently interrogated, and when he did not divulge any terror-related information, he was shipped to Syria. While then-acting Attorney General Larry D. Thompson could have returned Mr. Arar to his home in Canada, or in fact any other country that does not practice torture, Mr. Thompson chose to deport him to a country notorious for its abuse of human rights. Because Mr. Arar no longer has any ties to Syria, the only reason for doing so could have been the hope of extracting information through methods disallowed by the United States and international law.

Putting aside the moral and ethical bankruptcy of such an act, it violates international law. The United States is a party to the International Convention Against Torture which prohibits the removal of a person to another state "where there are substantial grounds for believing that he would be in danger of being subjected to torture." It is unfathomable that we would accept assurances that Mr. Arar would not be tortured from a country the State Department has long recognized as using torture tactics such as electrical shocks, pulling out of fingernails, and forcing objects into the rectum. With this information, one can only conclude that Syria was chosen precisely for the likelihood that torture would be employed.

I am sure that you both agree that intentionally rendering a human being to be tortured has no place in our anti-terror efforts. To that end, I ask that your respective agencies immediately investigate the circumstances around Mr. Arar's removal to ensure that such a rendition never happens again. Specifically, I would like your offices to explain:

- 1. What standard does the Attorney General's office use in determining that removal to the country of the detainee's designation is "prejudicial to the United States?"
- Specifically, what about returning Mr. Arar to his home in Canada would have been prejudicial to the United States?
- 3. Even if there was reason to believe that Canada was not the proper country for removal, why was Syria chosen over some other country?
- 4. What reason did we have to believe that Syria would abandon its long standing tradition of torturing prisoners?
- 5. How often in the last two years has DHS and/or the DOJ rendered aliens to third countries? What standards and procedures have you set for doing so?

Thank you for your time and attention to this request. Because of this human rights implications of such rendition activities, I am sure your offices will give this matter your immediate attention. If you have any questions, please contact Perry Apelbaum or Ted Kalo of the House Judiciary Committee staff at 202-225-6906.

The Honorable John Conyers, Jr. Committee on the Judiciary United States House of Representatives Washington, DC 20515-6216

Dear Congressman Conyers:

I am writing you to provide a status report on your request that we conduct a review into the circumstances under which the Immigration and Naturalization Service removed Maher Arar, a naturalized Canadian citizen, to Syria. You wrote me on December 16, 2003, requesting that my office conduct an investigation because of your concerns about the legal and human rights implications of Mr. Arar's removal to Syria and your desire "to ensure that such a rendition never happens again."

We have strived to be diligent in our review of this matter. Indeed, I would have preferred, and thought it reasonable to have expected, that you would have had a completed report by now. However, I write to inform you that our work has been delayed and may not be completed in a timely matter. Here is a brief history and explanation of our effort.

After receiving your request, I assigned the matter to our Office of Inspections, Evaluations, and Special Reviews. On January 8, 2004, the project officially started when I sent a formal initiation letter to the Immigration and Customs Enforcement office. By mid-January, we learned that there were restrictions on parts of the material we sought to review. We were informed that some of the information that we sought was classified. With respect to other information, we were informed by department attorneys that we could not have access on grounds of privilege related to the civil litigation that Mr. Arar has brought against the federal government.

By mid-May, we were able to review the classified documents that we had sought and that initially we had been told might not be made available to us. In the main, I am satisfied that there were sound reasons for the documents to have been classified, that they were not classified as a means of shielding them from scrutiny by an office such as mine, and that some consideration of our request prior to disclosure was appropriate, although the process was unduly protracted and frustrating.

During this same period, my office sought to interview present and former government employees relating to their role in the Arar matter. Concurrently, we have discussed with government attorneys the privilege issues that have been cited to block our access to additional documents that we believe exist and to impede our requests to interview potential witnesses. In regard to these efforts, we have had no success, although we continue to press our arguments. Government counsel continue to assert the privilege or to decline to seek a waiver, which we understand could be done, and as a result have stymied this aspect of our work.

I do not believe that the assertion of a legal privilege, such as the attorney-client privilege (when in the context of advice given by government counsel to a government official regarding government work) or the attorney work product or pre-decisional privileges can be asserted to block the clear statutory access to the agency's business conferred upon Inspectors General by section 6(a)(1) of the Inspector General Act. Further, I understand that there exists a strong legal proposition that providing information to an agency Inspector General does not constitute a waiver of privileges available to an agency in litigation with a third party.

Therefore, I believe my office should have been given these materials earlier, and that they are still owed to my office. I shall continue to seek access to them. In the meantime, I write with this explanation because of the unanticipated delay in responding to your request. I am pleased to meet with you or to answer any further questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Clark Kent Eryin Inspector General

The Honorable Michael Chertoff Secretary U.S. Department of Homeland Security Washington, DC 20528

Dear Secretary Chertoff:

I am writing to request that you immediately direct your staff to cooperate with the Inspector General's inquiry into how the Department of Homeland Security rendered Mr. Maher Arar, a Canadian citizen, to Syria to be tortured for ten months before being released without charge. The investigation has continued for over a year now without resolution, mainly due to the Department staff's refusal to respond to the Inspector's inquiries. I implore you to use your new position as Secretary to bring this disgrace to an end.

In December of 2003, I requested the Inspectors General of the Justice Department and Homeland Security Department to investigate their respective roles in turning over Mr. Arar to the Syrian government. Then-Inspector General, Clark Kent Ervin, accepted this inquiry on behalf of your department and began his task. Sadly, I received word from Mr. Ervin in July of last year that Immigration and Customs Enforcement personnel were thwarting all attempts by the Inspector General to determine how Mr. Arar became the victim of an "extraordinary rendition" in violation of our international obligations and long standing human rights law. He described the process as "unduly protracted and frustrating" (letter enclosed).

Over the past year, evidence has amassed that Mr. Arar's experience was not a unique one, but instead represents a standard operating procedure for some departments in our government. Determining exactly what happened to him is now more important than ever. Truly, until we discover just how these renditions occur, we will be unable to prevent anyone else from being tortured with the tacit approval of the United States.

I would appreciate hearing how you plan to ensure that staff will cooperate with this investigation. If you have any questions, please contact Perry Apelbaum or Ted Kalo of my

Further, I understand that there exists a strong legal proposition that providing information to an agency Inspector General does not constitute a waiver of privileges available to an agency in litigation with a third party.

Therefore, I believe my office should have been given these materials earlier, and that they are still owed to my office. I shall continue to seek access to them. In the meantime, I write with this explanation because of the unanticipated delay in responding to your request. I am pleased to meet with you or to answer any further questions you may have.

Sincerely.

FROM:

Clark Kent Ervin Inspector General

SUBJECT:

OIG Review of Maher Arar's Alien File

The Office of Inspector General has initiated a review of the removal of Mr. Maher Arar to Syria by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). INS authorities in New York initially detained Mr. Arar in September 2002.

To fulfill our review objectives, we wish to review all documents previously held by INS or now held by the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) regarding Mr. Arar and the circumstances of his apprehension and removal, including his classified and unclassified A Files, and any other documents or communications of any kind that pertain to these events. As such, we request that no documents relevant to our review be permitted to leave the custody of ICE until we have had an opportunity to examine and copy their contents. We are aware of reports that a lawsuit has been filed. If other demands for these materials arise because of civil litigation matters or any other investigation or review that might ensue, we will endeavor to complete our work in a timely fashion so as not to delay such requests; however, it is critical that these materials not be edited, altered, or released from ICE custody until our examination of them has been completed. OIG's receipt of these documents and information will not affect the ability of the Department to assert any applicable privileges otherwise existing.

If you have any questions concerning this inspection, please call me or Robert Ashbaugh, Assistant Inspector General for Inspections, Evaluations, and Special Reviews, at (202) 254-4100, or at (202) 254-4100.

Dear

I am writing to you in response to your letter of July 16, 2004, concerning the case of Maher Arar. I wanted to provide you with the status of our ongoing review of the Arar case and to clarify the scope of our review.

I would have expected our review to be completed by now. However, our work has been delayed and may not be completed in a timely matter for reasons beyond our control. Here is a brief explanation of our efforts to date.

On January 8, 2004, I sent a letter to the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) officially announcing the start of our review of the Arar case. By mid-January, we learned that there were restrictions on parts of the material that we sought to review. ICE officials said that some of the information that we sought was classified. With respect to other information, department attorneys said that we could not have access on grounds of privilege related to the civil litigation that Mr. Arar has brought against the federal government.

Not until mid-May were we able to review the classified documents that initially we had been told might not be made available to us. During this same period, we sought to interview present and former government employees about their role in the Arar matter. Concurrently, we discussed with government attorneys the privilege issues that were cited as the basis for blocking our access to additional documents that we believe exist and impeding our requests to interview potential witnesses. In regard to these efforts, we have had no success, although we continue to press our arguments. Because government counsel continues to assert the privilege issue or decline to waive it, which we understand could be done, our efforts to complete the review have been stymied. Our negotiations with government counsel are continuing and we hope to have access to the requested information soon.

As to the scope of our work, our review is focused solely on the Arar case for the time being. By limiting the scope of our review in this fashion, we have been attempting to expedite the conclusion of it.

That said, we are asking ICE to provide us with information concerning any other extraordinary renditions that may have occurred since 1998. Presuming we obtain that information (if there is any), we will review it and consider conducting reviews of these additional extraordinary renditions in the future.

We have two objectives for our review of the Arar case. We seek to understand the decision making process and policies followed by U.S. immigration officials when deciding to send Mr. Arar to Syria rather than Canada. Further, we seek to determine whether in the case of Arar, U.S. immigration officials complied with applicable laws and regulations governing the removal of aliens.

You noted in your letter that the term "extraordinary rendition" has no legal or generally acknowledged meaning. While we have not confirmed past instances of alleged extraordinary renditions, anecdotal information that we have received indicates that these cases usually involve the transportation of individuals between two countries other than the United States. To the extent that these alleged activities involve U.S. agencies other than DHS, we will be unable, of course, to confirm whether they may have occurred or the circumstances under which they may have occurred because our jurisdiction extends only to DHS.

Thank you for your interest in this important matter. DHS compliance with laws and regulations and the protection of civil liberties and civil rights will always be priorities for my office. If I can be of any further assistance, please contact me, or your staff may contact my congressional and media liaison officer, Tamara Faulkner, at (202) 254-4100.

Sincerely,

Clark Kent Ervin Inspector General

Have spoken with co -- counsel on both sides of the border. I will have a formal response drafted for you tomorrow. In short, due to a number of reasons which I will detail in my letter, our client will cooperate with the inspection by way of written responses to specific questions you have for him. Questions should be submitted to ourselves initially and we will cooperate with co-counsel and our client to provide you with relevant responses.

I note from your letter that immigration officials appear to be stone-walling your inspection. I trust that our level of cooperation, however, will assist you in this important process.

As I said, I will be in contact again formally tomorrow.

Dear Mr. Falconer:

Our office is conducting a review of the events surrounding the detention and removal of Maher Arar to Syria by the U.S. government. We are in the final stages of writing our draft report. We are once again requesting an interview with Mr. Arar. As you may recall, we requested this opportunity in August 2004 but were informed that an interview would not be possible at that time because of the pendency of the litigation brought by Mr. Arar and the investigation by the Canadian Commission of Inquiry.

We hope that Mr. Arar's situation has changed during the past year and that he would consent to be interviewed now. We must report to Congress on the information we have been able to obtain. It should include Mr. Arar's personal description of his treatment and interactions with U.S. immigration officials. His statement would be an important element of our report; his refusal to assist will concomitantly limit the completeness of the report. For this reason we ask that he reconsider and consent to an interview in your offices. If he is willing, we would like to conduct the interview as soon as possible.

Please feel free to contact me at 202-254

The Honorable Colin L. Powell Secretary of State U.S. Department of State 2201 C Street, NW Washington, DC 20520

LAWYERS COMMITTEE FOR HUMAN RIGHTS

Dear Secretary Powell:

We are writing to you to express our deep concern over the reported role of United States officials in transferring a Canadian citizen, Maher Arar, to Jordan with the understanding that he would then be turned over to Syria. Mr. Arar alleges that he was brutally tortured by Syrian authorities over a period of 10 months. As you may be aware, these allegations are contained in a front-page story on November 5, 2003 in the Washington Post. Mr. Arar claims that he strenuously protested being handed over to Syria and expressed the strong fear that he would be tortured there. We urge you to investigate his allegations, to report publicly on your findings, and to hold accountable any US officials who may have violated US law and human rights commitments in his case.

On June 26th in a statement commemorating UN Torture Victims Recognition Day, President Bush pledged that the United States is leading the fight against torture by example. He called upon all governments to join the United States in "prohibiting, investigating, and prosecuting all acts of torture...." These statements reinforced the even more specific assurances you provided to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on February 6, 2003 in which you said "[i]n any cases where the United States transfers detainees to other countries for detention we seek and receive assurances that detainees will not be tortured."

assurances you provided to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on February 6, 2003 in which you said "[i]n any cases where the United States transfers detainees to other countries for detention we seek and receive assurances that detainees will not be tortured."

Similar assurances have been provided by Department of Defense General Counsel William J. Haynes in a letter to Senator Leahy on June 25, 2003 stating that "United States policy is to obtain specific assurances from the receiving country that it will not torture the individual being transferred to that country. We can assure you that the United States would take steps to there were reason to believe that those assurances were not being honored."

investigate credible allegations of torture and take appropriate action if

RFK Memorial Center for Human Rights

ERNATIONAL LEAGUE OR HUMAN RIGHTS

Independent of these pledges, the United States has obligations under both the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman and Degrading Treatment or Punishment and US law to refrain from sending any individual to a country where there are substantial grounds for believing that he would be in danger of being tortured. The United States has long protested the use of torture in Syria. Indeed, in the President's November 6th speech to the National Endowment for Democracy he specifically mentioned the problem of torture there.

We urge the Administration to make good on these pledges and comply with its legal obligations by swiftly and thoroughly investigating this case and taking appropriate action against those responsible if the allegations prove correct. If Mr. Arar was in fact treated in the way he describes, it raises very serious questions over whether US officials have violated United States legal obligations and the President's pledges. In addition, either US officials failed to obtain the "appropriate assurances" discussed by General Counsel Haynes, or the Governments of Jordan and Syria violated those assurances.

There are many aspects of Mr. Arar's report that are troubling. First, of course, is the allegation that US authorities actively participated in sending an individual to a country known to use torture when interrogating prisoners despite his fear that there was a substantial likelihood that he would be tortured. This report is similar to earlier reports that US officials participated in the transfer to Syria of a prisoner seized in Morocco. In this case, however, the individual was allegedly detained in the United States and then transported by US officials. It is not clear that even receiving assurances of proper treatment from a government like Syria that has a well-documented record of torturing prisoners would satisfy US obligations.

Second, it is not clear what legal basis exists for "rendering" an individual to another government in general or in this specific case. Mr. Arar is allegedly a Canadian citizen and resides there. He was reportedly traveling from Tunisia to Canada by way of New York City when US officials detained him and held him for two weeks before flying him out of the country. There is no allegation that he has been charged with or is being sought by any government for having committed a crime. Thus, it does not appear that he was extradited, removed or deported under any of those applicable statutory provisions in US law. In the absence of an express statutory authorization, US officials are not authorized to seize, detain, transport and surrender an individual to a foreign state.

Third, the Washington Post article quotes anonymous Bush Administration officials who appear to contradict the Administration's public statements concerning the abuse and rendition of prisoners. In this instance, anonymous officials claim that the United States has engaged in "a lot of rendition activities" and that one of the reasons for these renditions is the desire to place suspects "in other hands because they have different standards...." While we appreciate the Administration's repeated public assurances that suspects are not being transferred to other countries so that they will be abused in order to extract information from them, we continue to be troubled by the statements of unnamed officials contradicting these public statements. The repeated claims of unnamed Bush Administration officials involved in actual cases raise serious questions about whether the President's policy against torture is being violated in practice. Those concerns are bolstered by the comments of former US intelligence officials, such as Vincent Cannistraro and Robert Baer, who have said publicly that they believe that transferred suspects are being tortured.

We call on the Administration to undertake a swift and thorough investigation into Mr. Arar's case and to make public the results of that investigation. We also urge the Administration to investigate and publicly respond to the repeated public claims of past and present intelligence officers that the United States is participating in many prisoner transfers and that transferred prisoners are known to be tortured. Finally, we urge the Administration to end the practice of transferring persons to countries where it cannot effectively assure that they will be free from torture or other mistreatment. We look forward to hearing from you concerning this matter.

Re: Maher Arar

Dear Mr. Ervin:

Thank you for the opportunity to meet with you on April 26 to discuss the inspection your office is conducting into the case of Maher Arar and the policies and procedures that led to his detention and removal to Syria. We believe this is a timely and important inquiry that can help shed light on an obscure area of current U.S. practice.

We were pleased to learn that your inspection will focus not only on the specific case of Mr. Arar, but more generally on cases involving the removal of alleged terrorist suspects to a country where they may risk being subjected to torture. This focus will enable you to examine how Mr. Arar's case fits into the handling of so-called "extra-ordinary renditions," a category that has no legal definition known to us. We hope you will clarify what the U.S. government means by this term and the official purpose of such renditions. Further, we hope your inspection will shed light on U.S. practice with respect to these transfers and what procedural safeguards, if any, apply. Although U.S. authorities have admitted that a number of renditions have occurred in past years, there is no public record of the vast majority and thus no way to evaluate if the procedures governing the renditions comply with U.S. legal obligations.

During our meeting, your staff suggested that your office would not interview Mr. Arar unless there were factual disagreements about what had occurred in his case. From the public record clear contradictions have already emerged, and we would strongly urge you meet with Mr. Arar at an early phase of the inspection. Meeting with Mr. Arar is essential to a thorough and accurate review of the way the government handled his case.

We would like to take this opportunity to underscore some of the issues that we discussed at our meeting and share with you information and materials that may prove useful to the inspection. In particular, we would like to draw your attention to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment ("Torture Convention") and the Foreign Affairs Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998 ("FARRA"). The United States ratified the Torture Convention in 1994. Article 3 of the Convention prohibits the return or transfer of any person to a country where there are substantial grounds for believing he or she would be at risk of being subjected to torture. In 1998, Congress directed federal agencies to promulgate and enforce regulations in order to implement effectively this provision of the Torture Convention. In the FARRA, Congress stated that "it shall be the policy of the United States not to expel, extradite, or otherwise effect the involuntary return of any person to a country in which there are substantial grounds for believing the person would be in danger of being subjected to torture, regardless of whether the person is physically present in the United States." This is referred to as the 'nonrefoulement' obligation under Article 3 of the Torture Convention. Only the Departments of Justice and State issued regulations. See 8 C.F.R. §§ 1208.16(c), 1208.17, 1208.18 and 22 C.F.R. § 95.2. The Justice Department regulations became Department of Homeland Security regulations in 2003. See 8 C.F.R. §§ 208.16(c), 208.17, 208.18. A recent study by the Congressional Research Service (Appendix A) provides a good guide to U.S. obligations

From our research and experience, it appears that the safeguards for insuring compliance with legal prohibition on refoulement are vague, and the oversight minimal. Mr. Arar's case is one of the few that has emerged publicly, but the potential for similar problems is significant. (Information about specific cases tracked by Amnesty International is enclosed as Appendix B.) The threat is particularly great where, in cases like Arar, the non-citizen detainee is deemed a security threat or a terrorist suspect. In such cases, streamlined removal procedures allow substantial discretion on the part of administrative officials and the final decision leaves no publicly available record for review. The problem is further complicated by the variety of legal procedures and agencies involved. We urge you to review the full range of procedures for removal of non-citizens from the United States, including all forms of expedited removal, and to include other agencies as well.

We believe it is particularly important for you to inquire about the use of "diplomatic assurances" - that is, written guarantees from the receiving state that a person would not be subject to torture or other prohibited treatment upon return. This would necessarily require a review of practice in other agencies with respect to securing such guarantees. In the Arar matter, the U.S. government reportedly relied on "assurances" given by the government of Syria. A Washington Post article states that such assurances were obtained by the CIA. (Appendix C). Correspondence between the Human Rights Executive Directors Working Group and the Department of State suggest that the Department of Justice may have been involved as well. (Appendix D & E). This is a hazy area where law and practice appear to be out of sync. We are very concerned about the use of diplomatic assurances to circumvent the non-refoulement obligation of the Torture Convention and Congress's directive to implement that obligation under FARRA. The legal obligation not to send people back to torture is absolute. Just as the U.S. government cannot engage in torture directly, it cannot send people to other countries where they risk being tortured. The use of diplomatic assurances must be evaluated in terms of this clear obligation, and with an eye toward protecting those facing removal from the United States from a risk of torture. (See Human Rights Watch Report, "Empty Promises: Diplomatic Assurances No Safeguard Against Torture," Ex. F).

In sum, we hope you will have the opportunity to consider the following questions in the course of your inspection:

- ✓ What are the considerations, procedures and protocols for removing an individual suspected of terrorist activities? Do they vary with respect to extradition, removal, expedited removal, and so-called "extraordinary renditions?"
- ✓ How is the country of removal determined? What is the process for assessing the threat of torture in a country to which someone is to be deported? What procedural safeguards exist for the non-citizen facing removal?
- ✓ What is the definition of "extraordinary rendition"?
- Under what circumstances is custody transferred subject to "diplomatic assurances" (8 C.F.R. § 208.18(c)). Are there other forms of "assurances" that are deemed sufficient to overcome the prohibition on "non-refoulement?" Does the process require the evaluation of widespread or systematic use of torture or inhuman treatment or other human rights violations in the receiving country when determining whether diplomatic assurances from that country can properly be relied upon? What ability does the non-citizen facing removal have to challenge the reliability of diplomatic assurances in his or her case?

- ✓ What follow-up mechanisms are used to verify that diplomatic assurances are effective? How does this comport with U.S. obligations under the Torture Convention not to return any person to a country where he or she may risk torture?
- ✓ What process is in place to inform consulates when their citizens are being detained and to update consulates on detainees' status?
- ✓ At what point are detainees allowed to consult with an attorney, and what is the process by which an attorney is informed of developments in his / her client's case?
- ✓ What rights are afforded to detainees at each stage in the detention and deportation process? What procedural safeguards?
- ✓ What process is in place to keep the families of detainees informed as to the whereabouts and deportation of their loved one?
- ✓ What is the protocol for working with other U.S. government agencies with regard to requests for detentions and deportations, as well as monitoring treatment of deportees once they have arrived in the designated country?
- ✓ What is the protocol for sharing information attained by host counties interrogating the deportee? How does this comport with U.S. obligations under the FARRA and CAT?
- ✓ In what ways does the transition to DHS affect the above questions? What new regulations or policies should DHS adopt to ensure compliance with FARRA?

As we discussed at our meeting, a Canadian Commission of Inquiry has launched an investigation into the role of Canadian authorities in this is matter. Formal proceedings began on June 21. We encourage your office to consider full co-operation and the exchange of information with the Canadian Commission.

We have enclosed appendices, which provide background on U.S. obligations under the Torture Convention and the FARRA, diplomatic assurances, Mr. Arar's case and other cases tracked by Amnesty International. We would be pleased to provide additional information or to facilitate meetings with attorneys and family members who have gone through the detention and deportation of their clients and loved ones. We thank you again for the opportunity to meet and discuss the scope of your inspection and look forward to continuing this dialogue.

U.S. Code, Title 8, Section 1231: Determining the Destination Countries for Aliens with Orders of Removal

General Authority

In removal proceedings under Title 8, an alien shall be removed to the country in which the alien boarded the aircraft on which he arrived in the U.S.

Exceptions:

- 1. If the alien boarded the aircraft on which he arrived in the U.S. in a foreign territory contiguous to, an island adjacent to, or an island adjacent to a foreign territory contiguous to the U.S., and the alien is not a native, citizen, subject, or national of, or does not reside in, the territory or island, removal shall be to the country in which the alien boarded the vessel that transported the alien to the territory or island.
- 2. Alternative countries: If the government of the country designated above is unwilling to accept the alien, removal shall be to any of the following countries, as directed by the INS:
 - (i) The country of which the alien is a citizen, subject, or national.
 - (ii) The country in which the alien was born.
 - (iii) The country in which the alien has a residence.
 - (iv) A country with a government that will accept the alien into the country's territory if removal to each country described above is impracticable.

Discretion of Alien to Designate Destination Country

The alien can also, under limited circumstances, select the country to which he will be removed. An alien who does meet the above criteria and who has been ordered removed may designate one country and INS shall remove the alien to that country. A limitation is that the alien may designate a foreign territory contiguous to, an adjacent island, or an island adjacent to a foreign territory contiguous to the U.S., as the place to which the alien is to be removed only if the alien is a native, citizen, subject, or national of, or has resided in, that designated territory or island. The INS can disregard the alien's designation if:

- i) the alien fails to designate a country promptly;
- the government of the country does not inform the U.S. within 30 days after the initial inquiry as to whether the government will accept the alien into the country;
- the government of the country is not willing to accept the alien into the country; or the Attorney General decides that removing the alien to the country is prejudicial to the U.S.

If an alien is not removed to a country designated above, the INS shall remove the alien to a country of which the alien is a subject, national, or citizen unless the government of the country:

- does not inform the INS or the alien finally, within 30 days after the date the INS first inquires or within another period of time the Attorney General decides is reasonable, whether the government will accept the alien into the country; or
- (ii) the country is not willing to accept the alien into the country.

If an alien is not removed to a country under the previous subparagraphs, the INS shall remove the alien to any of the following countries:

- (i) The country from which the alien was admitted to the U.S.
- (ii) The country in which is located the foreign port from which the alien left for the U.S. or for a foreign territory contiguous to the U.S.
- (iii) A country in which the alien resided before the alien entered the country from which the alien entered the U.S.

b5

- (iv) The country in which the alien was born.
- The country that had sovereignty over the alien's buthplace when the alien was born.
- (vi) The country in which the alien's birthplace is located when the alien is ordered removed.
- (vii) If impracticable to remove the alien to each country described in a previous clause of this subparagraph, another country whose government would accept the alien into that country.

War Provisions

When the U.S. is at war and the Attorney General decides that it is impracticable to remove an alien under this subsection because of the war, the Attorney General/INS may remove the alien:

- to the country that is host to a government in exile of the country of which the alien is a citizen or subject if the government of the host country will permit the alien's entry; or
- (ii) if the recognized government of the country of which the alien is a citizen or subject is not in exile, to a country, or a political or territorial subdivision of a country, that is very near the country of which the alien is a citizen or subject, or, with the consent of the government of the country of which the alien is a citizen or subject, to another country.

Persecution Prohibitions

The INS may not remove an alien to a country if the Attorney General decides that the alien's life or freedom would be threatened in that country because of the alien's race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion. An exception is that if the Attorney General decides that:

the alien ordered, incited, assisted, or otherwise participated in the persecution of an individual because of the individual's race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion;

b5

- (ii) the alien, having been convicted by a final judgment of a particularly serious crime is a danger to the U.S. community;
- (iii) there are serious reasons to believe that the alien committed a serious nonpolitical crime outside the U.S.; or
- (iv) there are reasonable grounds to believe that the alien is a danger to the security of the U.S.

Statutory Definition of Terrorist Activity

For purposes of clause (iv) above, an alien who is: "Any alien who has engaged, is engaged, or at any time after admission engages in any terrorist activity" (as defined below) - shall be considered to be an alien with respect to whom there are reasonable grounds for regarding as a danger to U.S. security.

Definition of terrorist activity: As used in U.S. Code, Title 8, Section 1182, the term "engage in terrorist activity" means to commit, in an individual capacity or as a member of an organization, an act of terrorist activity or an act which the actor knows, or reasonably should know, affords material support to any individual, organization, or government in conducting a terrorist activity at any time, including acts such as the planning of terrorist activity or the providing of any type of material support to any individual the actor knows or has reason to believe has committed or plans to commit terrorist activity.

The significance of the application of the 235(c) charge is that it cut short what would otherwise be a routine immigration matter. That is, having been charged under 235(c), Arar was not entitled to asylum consideration, a hearing before an immigration judge, or any avenue of appeal. The only protection or relief that remained for him was protection under CAT, which we will discuss later.

Apparently some offficers/docket clerks changed their minds and the list boiled down to 7 aliens. These are people charged since 10/1/1997 and removed. Aliens charged before 10/1/1997 and removed after 10/1/1997 are NOT included.

I included all the relevent country data elements, the date of removal, the DCO, and the current file location as per the Central Index.

I had the list of aliens charged under 212(a)(3) rerun and updated through Sept 19, 2004. There are 100 cases; outcomes:

removed 9
VD under docket control 1
Withdraw under docket control 39
Policy closed 1
Proceedings terminated by IJ 2
Case still in proceedings 48

I have attached an Excel sheet that has limited information on all 100 cases (sorted by above categories). Of the 9 removals, 8 were returned to country of origin. One alien was a Canadian citizen born in Syria; DRO returned the alien to Syria.

u are correct in that the 3 "other" cases we discussed may now be showing in the 100 total. I think it is also fare to assume that the Arar case was one of the 3 since it is also now showing.

RCMP broke rules: Report

Gensored-document-released-at-Maher-Arar-inquiry
Force ill-equipped, lacked `expertise,' internal review says

MICHELLE SHEPHARD STAFF REPORTER

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police were ill-equipped to deal with terrorism investigations in the wake of the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks on the United States and broke policy rules when supplying American investigators information about Canadian Maher Arar, says a damning report released by a federal inquiry.

Those accusations and others involving the improper seizure of evidence, acrimonious relationships within the federal police force and the lack of involvement of supervisors in Arar's case, were contained in a censored 76-page internal review prepared by a senior RCMP officer and released yesterday at the Arar inquiry.

U.S. authorities detained Arar, a 34-year-old Syrian-born Canadian, in New York on Sept. 26, 2002, as he was returning home to Ottawa from a visit to Tunisia. He was deported to Syria.

RCMP Chief Superintendent Brian Garvie wrote the report's conclusions should be considered in the context of the "public, political and national security environment of post 9/11."

"The ability of the RCMP to deal with the outcome of that terrorist act, and to manage the expectations as a result of it, was to a large extent limited. At that time, both at headquarters and in the field, the RCMP did not have sufficient investigative expertise, nor did they have the capacity to efficiently and effectively deal with national security investigations overall," he wrote.

Arar's lawyers say the report shows that the Ottawa engineer was a "victim of the RCMP's inexperience."

"As a Canadian citizen ... I ask myself can we feel safe, should we feel safe. What are the problems in the RCMP and what needs to be done to correct those problems," said lawyer Lorne Waldman.

RCMP spokesperson Inspector Tim Cogan said yesterday he did not want to comment on the report in an effort to not bias the inquiry proceedings, but noted the document had to be taken in context with all the evidence presented at the commission of inquiry into the role of Canadian authorities in the case.

"Post 9/11 was a different time where we are now. Everything has changed," Cogan said. "We're in a different world today than we were then ... a lot of progress has been made after this historically unprecedented event."

More than $500 million in government funding was allotted to the RCMP for security investigations in the wake of 9/11. A portion was used to create four new joint task forces known as Integrated National Security Enforcement Teams (INSETs) which include local police officers and immigration officials.

The Ottawa branch of the RCMP-led task force (known as the A division) launched the O Canada investigation that was probing the existence of an Al Qaeda cell in Canada and focused on another Ottawa engineer, Abdullah Almalki. It's believed it was Arar's relationship with Almalki and his older brother, and a former Toronto truck driver named Ahmed Elmaati that connected him to the investigation.

Garvie's report says members of the A-O Canada team had "legitimate reasons" to investigate Arar and notes the U.S. authorities were conducting their own investigation with respect to Arar.

The report findings include:

- ★ The RCMP did not contribute to the torture or interrogation of Arar in Syria and did not provide the Syrians with a list of questions.
- ★ There was an "acrimonious" relationship between investigators on the A-O Canada team and those within the RCMP's Criminal Intelligence Directorate HQ. As a result, wrote Garvie, attempts by headquarters to "effectively monitor the investigation and to provide the appropriate co-ordination, direction or advice was resented."
- ★ Correspondence, including a CD burned from the Project A-O Canada database, given to U.S. authorities about Arar did not include the proper caveats or the appropriate supervisor's signatures that are required in accordance with RCMP policies. Caveats can concern the reliability of information provided or restrictions from passing that information to a third party.
- ★ Senior managers were not consulted before information was passed to the United States concerning Arar.
- ★ An apartment lease obtained from Arar's former landlord in Canada was not obtained with a search warrant as required by the Criminal Code.

The report finds that INSET members believed Arar would be deported to Canada and had put a request to conduct surveillance of him when he returned. Due to cost, they abandoned a request to interview Arar while he was in custody in New York.

"This decision was made because the RCMP airplane was not available, the cost to travel commercially was prohibitive and (censored) had not approved the interview request," the report said.

The findings, at least a quarter of which were blacked out due to concerns of national security, are in stark contrast to a letter that was made public at the inquiry this summer, which absolved the RCMP of any wrongdoing.

"I am satisfied that members of the RCMP acted within the laws of Canada," Assistant Commissioner Ghyslaine Clément wrote in April.

An inquiry headed by Justice Dennis O'Connor, which is now hearing evidence behind closed doors, is expected to conclude how information was shared between authorities in Canada, the United States and Syria.

Arar was detained during a stopover flight in New York in September, 2002. He was deported to Syria, via Jordan, where Arar says Syrian authorities questioned him on information he believes came from Canada. He was released last year after being tortured and held for a year.

Arar said in a written statement yesterday that he was most disturbed by the report's finding that after eight months in a Syrian jail, the RCMP would not issue a letter to his lawyer saying he was not a terrorist suspect.

"I could have been out of that miserable place four months earlier."

Arar also spoke for the first time yesterday of a person who was in the room when he was questioned in New York, who refused to identify himself but who spoke with a distinct French-Canadian accent. "We still have a long way to go before I really know why this was done to me and who was involved."

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER ISSUES TERMS OF REFERENCE FOR THE PUBLIC INQUIRY INTO THE MAHER ARAR MATTER

OTTAWA, February 5, 2004 — The Honourable Anne McLeilan, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Public Safety and Emergency Preparedness, today announced that the Government of Canada has issued Terms of Reference for the Commission of Inquiry into the Actions of Canadian Officials in Relation to Maher Arar.

On January 28, 2004, the Deputy Prime Minister announced that Mr. Justice Dennis R. O'Connor would undertake a public inquiry into the actions of Canadian officials dealing with the deportation and detention of Mr. Maher Arar and then, as a second task, make recommendations concerning an independent, arm's-length review mechanism for the RCMP's activities with respect to national security.

Mr. Justice O'Connor is to investigate and report on the actions of Canadian officials in relation to Maher Arar, including the following:

- the detention of Mr. Arar in the United States;
- the deportation of Mr. Arar to Syria via Jordan;
- the imprisonment and treatment of Mr. Arar in Syria;
- the return of Mr. Arar to Canada; and
- any other circumstance directly related to Mr. Arar that Justice O'Connor considers relevant to fulfilling this mandate.

Under the policy review of possible review mechanisms for RCMP national security activities, Mr. Justice O'Connor will examine domestic and international review models. He will make such recommendations as he considers advisable on the creation of a new mechanism and in doing this he will consider how the recommended mechanism would interact with other Canadian review bodies.

Dear

Re: Maher Arar

Pursuant to our conversation of October 20, 2004, I am enclosing the following:

- the redacted Garvie Report. This report reviews the conduct of the RCMP in relation to how they dealt with the Arar matter upon being notified by American authorities that Mr. Arar was detained in the United States. This is an internal review of the RCMP which was done pursuant to a complaint filed against the RCMP before the Public Complaints Commission which scrutinizes their conduct.
- 2. the report of the Security Intelligence Review Committee (SIRC). SIRC is the body which reviews the activities of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service. This report deals with how CSIS conducted itself in respect of the Arar matter.
